Maybe one of the areas that Canoeing around the world has less thought of is using information technologies to modernize and widespread our beautiful sport. Using Internet as a platform of exchanging information, news, photos, latest improvements, collecting the public opinions and so forth, is crucial & inevitable.

Asian Canoe Confederation has come a long way to achieve these goals, and now ACC website takes a big step to cover the major aspects of these needs.

This website will be available on June 1st 2003, the “World Canoeing Day”.

News, announcements, medical articles, training and technical articles can be added to the website in a dynamic fashion. How to contact ACC authorities and affiliated countries, federations are placed in the website. Acc structure, status and by-laws and

A photo gallery categorizing photos of this beautiful sport is also available in this website. And above all, information of the most of canoeing Asian games are placed in this website while others can be added as well.

This information includes Asian canoeing events and participants of each event with their arrangements, companions, results and records. Also this website makes it possible to have cross event reports by which one can get a report of history of an athlete or even a coach or a referee. The website also provides visitors with lists of results of a particular flat water discipline in Asian games, this makes a visitor able to trace down all results of a particular discipline easily.

We all hope this website will be a benefit for canoeing sport.
